Remarks:

The ground all slopes to the northwest from the well and can be irrigated by flooding or from ditches along the south or east sides of the tracts. Both systems have been used. If the crops to be raised can better be irrigated by small ditches they are made. If not required for next crop, the ditches are plowed. The next time ditches are needed they may or may not be in the same location as before. Average slope .20%. There is generally little, if any, water to fulfill the old adjudicated water rights.
