Remarks: At 150.0 feet from the point of diversion the East ditch forks to create the West ditch, and is carried across Fields Creek in a 12"x 12" flume, 20 feet in length. The reason is because there is basalt rim rock between the point of diversion and the flume, and was consider cheaper to flume the creek.

It is understood this is a flood water application, and is subsequent to all existing rights.
